

We're looking for performers — Silence to Sound

Do you speak Swiss German, German, Arabic, French, Polish, English, Italian or Romansh?

Are you interested in translation?

Do you want to be part of an improvised performance?

TEDxZurich is hosting a seasonal opening on 22 October, and we are looking for university drama or literature students to join us as readers for an improvised, multilingual performance.

Silence to Sound brings a passage from Olga Tokarczuk's Flights to life through six voices reading in four Swiss and two international languages, overlapping and unfolding across the room. The reading is rehearsed and choreographed but performed live and in the moment.

No prior performance experience required, just a love of language and a willingness to rehearse.*
